Response to Amendment/Arguments

- 1. Applicant's arguments filed 10/29/02 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.
- The Examiner would like to clarify the 112-1st paragraph rejection as set forth in 2. the previous office action. Although, the specification and drawings teach and discloses. the various components of the valves, the disclosure is not enabled with respect to the sequence of events that occur when the activation button is depressed to fill the chamber up with the oxygen and nitrogen and how the seat member and ball are displaced during the dispensing of the oxygen and nitrogen. Based on the disclosure of the drawings and specification, there is no teaching of how the nitrogen and/or oxygen gets filled into chamber from the canister 20 and then in turn how the nitrogen and/or oxvgen gets discharged with a constant volume. The Applicant contends that "a patent need not teach, and preferably omits, what is well known in the art." However, the specific elements with respect to their function of filling and discharging are not taught and omitted from the disclosure, and that is also the novelty or inventive concept for which the Applicant seeks protection i.e., those elements and/or functions that the Applicant deems to be omittable are critical and essential to the claimed invention. Therefore, it is unclear to the Examiner how that disclosure does not need to be taught or can be preferably omitted. Furthermore, Applicant states that in Figure 11, 'a ball 56 engages a hard metal seat 58'..."upon engagement with a hard surface creates a tangent or a meeting of a curved surface in a single point, thereby preventing 'sealable engagement' between the two, or more specifically between the ball 56 and seat 58". However, upon examination of Figure 11, ball 56 and seat 58 are shown to be in a tight sealed engagement, which contradicts the recitation of "preventing a sealing seat from being achieved".

Art Unit: 3761

Specification

- 3. The following is a quotation of 37 CFR 1.71(a)-(c):
 - (a) The specification must include a written description of the invention or discovery and of the manner and process of making and using the same, and is required to be in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art or science to which the invention or discovery appertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same.
 - (b) The specification must set forth the precise invention for which a patent is solicited, in such manner as to distinguish it from other inventions and from what is old. It must describe completely a specific embodiment of the process, machine, manufacture, composition of matter or improvement invented, and must explain the mode of operation or principle whenever applicable. The best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention must be set forth.
 - (c) In the case of an improvement, the specification must particularly point out the part or parts of the process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter to which the improvement relates, and the description should be confined to the specific improvement and to such parts as necessarily cooperate with it or as may be necessary to a complete understanding or description of it.

The specification is objected to under 37 CFR 1.71 because the Applicant fails to provide adequate support in the disclosure for how the valve functions, specifically the sequence of events that occur when the activation button is depressed to fill the chamber up with the oxygen and nitrogen and how the seat member and ball are displaced during the dispensing of the oxygen and nitrogen. Furthermore, Applicant fails to provide adequate support as to how the hard metal seat prevents a sealing seat from being achieved. Finally, based on the disclosure of Figure 11, it appears that the valve arm, threaded shank 51, the seat member, ball and spring, and all the elements associated with the above noted elements are floating in the valve housing, i.e., there is no disclosure in the drawings of how these elements are structurally supported within the valve housing. One of skill in the art would not know how to make and/or use the invention without adequate support for how the constant volume discharge valve functions to dispense the oxygen and nitrogen.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

- 4. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:
 - The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.
- 5. Claims 18-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

With respect to claim 18, the Applicant fails to provide adequate support in the disclosure for how the valve functions, specifically the sequence of events that occur when the activation button is depressed to fill the chamber up with the oxygen and nitrogen and how the seat member and ball are displaced during the dispensing of the oxygen and nitrogen. Furthermore, Applicant fails to provide adequate support as to how the hard metal seat prevents a sealing seat from being achieved. Finally, based on the disclosure of Figure 11, it appears that the valve arm, threaded shank 51, the seat member, ball and spring, and all the elements associated with the above noted elements are floating in the valve housing, i.e., there is no disclosure in the drawings of how these elements are structurally supported within the valve housing. One of skill in the art would not know how to make and/or use the invention without adequate support for how the constant volume discharge valve functions to dispense the oxygen and nitrogen.

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action.
